Statement of Quality Policy

We are The Utile Engineering Co Limited, a traditional British manufacturing company, established over 100 years ago, having its head office in Irthlingborough, Northants, England.

We are committed to the effective implementation of a Quality Management System satisfying the requirements of BS EN ISO 9001: 2015 and to its on-going improvement in our activities which, as stated in the scope, are:

Design, manufacture, repair and refurbishment, packaging, installation, commissioning and servicing of compressors, boosters, pumps and blowers and associated products. The supply, installation, and commissioning of fabric gas holders. The supply of associated spares. The associated training of customer operatives and maintenance staff.

We strive to improve in all aspects of service and product quality to achieve complete customer satisfaction.

Specific objectives are decided at our management review meetings where targets are set, and performance reviewed.

It is the responsibility of all employees to ensure ongoing compliance with the relevant quality procedures and all customer and statutory requirements.
